First, I went to the zoo to see the tigers because I assumed they are more playful during the colder weather. When I got there, I could not find any parking, so I parked across the street from the zoo. Then, when I went inside I found that the tigers were asleep. I was very disappointed by this. I was hoping to see the tigers playing. Instead, I actually had a good time watching the otters, who were swimming in the water and playing with toys they had been given. In addition, the zookeepers came out to feed them, so the otters became even more active. After the zoo, I went to the grocery store to buy grapes. Besides grapes, I bought a dozen strawberries, which I did not really need. Afterwards, I went home. Overall, I had a really good day.
