

Science Fiction Story

Paragraphing

The beginning of this science fiction story should be split into THREE paragraphs. Make the mark // where you think the first two paragraphs should end.

'Rise and Shine!' beeped the droid as it smoothly drew back the solar shields. 'Did the asteroid shower keep you awake?' 'No, I slept like a dead star', yawned Serena. 'Are the others up yet?' 'Yes. I believe you are – technically speaking – late!' grimaced the droid. 'For your information the year is 2090; we are cruising at warp three and the outside temperature is...'

Why do you have to change paragraphs, in this example? Are there any other reasons for starting a new paragraph? What are they?
